4 Route to Wakasa Bay from Historic Saba Kaido Post Town A route exploring the history of Wakasa & its fishing villages

On this course, you'll explore the origin point of the Saba Kaido, featuring the popular stretch of the kaido from Kumagawa-juku to Obama, and port towns along the coast. Starting on the old path toward Uriwari Falls, you will see the area's rich marine ecosystem sustained by natural springs that support the local communities. Try the local specialty, yakisaba (grilled mackerel) around the fishing port, then head to the tip of the Uchitomi Peninsula. From Ano to Tagarasu, ride through a number of small fishing villages along the ria coast. The best course to immerse yourself in the deep culture of the historic Wakasa port town, which remains today an important fishing center of Japan.

This course offers the ride on a newer payed road parallel to the ancient Harihata Pass trail, known as the oldest Saba Kaido going through the very steep Harihata Pass between Onyu and Kutsuki. As the shortest course to Kyoto, there are 3 steep passes along the way, with an elevation gain of nearly 2000 meters. Around the mountainous areas of Harihata Pass, you will enjoy the peaceful natural environment. The spectacular view from Onyu Pass is a worthy reward for completing this challenging course. Due to snow, the road is closed in winter.

Course ① and ② mainly cover paved roads parallel to the historic trail but in some areas, other roads are selected on the map for safety reasons

The Wakasa Kaido was the most heavily trafficked of all the Saba Kaido roads. Mackerel from the Wakasa Bay was transported on this route to the old capital of Kyoto, from Onyu to Kumagawa, Kutsuki over the Hanaore Pass, Ohara and finally Kyoto. On this cycling course following the historic route, you'll ride a distance of 77 km from Kyoto to Obama. You'll mainly stay on the national roads, with occasional old paths offering a bit deeper adventure.
